Course Description:

Given the general confusion about the different forms of multicide, this course will critically analyze the phenomenon of mass murder as a unique form of multicide. The goal of the course is to examine the causes, characteristics and consequences of mass murder which is relatively rare, but also extremely consequential. An historical and contemporary analysis of mass murder will be undertaken, along with an assessment of the impact of the media on public perceptions of mass murders, in order to extend our understanding of the structural causes of this form of multicide, in contemporary society.

Prerequisite(s):

Enrollment in fourth year of one of the Honours Specializations or Honours Double Majors in Sociology. Unless you have either the requisites for this course or written special permission from your Dean to enroll in it, you may be removed from this course and it will be deleted from your record. This decision may not be appealed. You will receive no adjustment to your fees in the event that you are dropped from a course for failing to have the necessary prerequisites.

This course will undertake to familiarize students with the facts versus the myths of serial murder, to understand serial murder from a sociological framework, to critically analyze media views of serial murder, to evaluate serial killing within a criminological framework, and to contextualize serial murder as a reaction to broader societal fears and concerns.
