Lecture Notes:

Lecture notes are available through the side menu on the left-hand side of your screen. Each week's lecture(s) are labelled according to week and topic. Lecture notes are automatically released to students the Monday of the week we cover the topic at 12:00am. Students are responsible for all of the specified readings, even if they are not covered extensively in lecture notes or discussions. Exams will be based on a combination of readings and lectures.

Exams:

Exams will be based on the material covered in the on-line lecture notes and on the assigned readings. Both exams will be 2 hours in length. Each of the exams will consist of multiple choice, true and false and identification/ short answer written questions.

Note: Both the midterm and final exams for this course must be taken in person at a designated exam location.

Library Module:

The library module will be run by the university librarian and will count for 5% of your final grade. This module is designed to give students knowledge of how to use the online university library system and has been a great resource for students. Students will complete a pre-test, then work through the module, and complete a post-test after. The grade on the pre-test is for completing all questions. If you complete all questions on the pre-test, you will receive 100%. Your post-test grade is contingent upon the grade that you receive on the test. Additional details will be posted within the course site in the library module (posted on the menu on the left-hand side of the screen).

Quiz:

The quiz is a self-administered assessment through OWL. The quiz will cover the material from first 3 weeks (Introduction to Sociology, Theory, Gender, Methods, Socialization). It is multiple choice, true or false and short answer, and contains 23 questions.

Formal Discussion Question:

Part of your grade in this course will be based on a posted formal discussion question. Think of this discussion questions as a mini-essay—it is designed to help scaffold your major course essay. This question will be posted in the forums section of the course under a separate topic category (eg. Discussion #1). The advantage of the feature is that the messages are ‘threaded’ together around an original posting that raises a specific question for discussion. The question will be posted one week (7 days) before the discussion question is due. The due date of the discussion questions is noted above. Once the question is posted, students have one week to contribute to the discussion. There will be no excuses accepted for late submissions as everyone has an entire week in which to log on and overcome any technological difficulties that may unexpectedly arise. In addition, it is clearly indicated on the course outline when this discussion will take place therefore, holidays, other school/ work commitments will not suffice as excuses. If you miss a discussion question, absolutely no late responses will be accepted. If you do not post a response, you receive a zero. Students’ grades will not be based solely on posting a response to the discussion (eg. simply responding to the question). Both grammar and content will be evaluated. I will be looking for substantive comments in relation to the question-- it is essential that you relate comments to course lecture and reading materials and provide citations.

Essay:

Sociology 1021E is a designated essay course and as such, each “student is required to demonstrate competence in essay writing to pass the course.”

www.uwo.ca/univsec/pdf/academic_policies/registration_progression_grad/coursenumbering.pdf. Furthermore, as stated in the academic calendar, “[t]he structure of the essay course must be such that in order to pass the course, the student must exhibit some minimal level of competence in essay writing and the appropriate level of knowledge of the content of the course.”

www.uwo.ca/univsec/pdf/academic_policies/registration_progression_grad/coursenumbering.pdf. It is imperative that you submit an essay in order to pass. You must receive 50% or above on your essays in order to pass the course.

Essay Guidelines:

Complete essay guidelines concerning topic, essay format, expectations, etc. are posted on the course site in the evaluations (assignment) section. There is one essay for this course. You will be graded on both form and content. You will be using the assignment submission feature of OWL to submit your essay. Your essays must be submitted no later than 23:59 (Eastern Time Zone) on the due dates.

Assignments submitted to OWL are date and time stamped. Turnitin.com is integrated into the new OWL software and your essay will be scanned upon submission.

Late Essays:

There is a 3% deduction, per day (including weekends), for essays submitted past the deadline (for example, if you received 76% on your essay, but it was 2 days late, you would receive a 70%). After 14 days, no essay will be accepted and will automatically receive a 0.

Participation Grade:

As the course discussions section allows everyone to read all of the posted messages, we will also use this forum for class participation. Your grade for class participation will be based on your submissions (with the exception of your introductory message and the formal posted discussion questions) to the participation section of the discussions areas. You will be assessed for both the frequency, the quality of and the use of course material in your participation. You can earn up to 10% of your grade by submitting messages spaced throughout the course related to the course content. For example, these messages can be in response to one of the questions asked in the course notes, or you may wish to share your thoughts or ideas on the readings. You can also apply aspects of the course material to current events. To receive full marks for this section, it is not enough to merely say that you liked or disliked a reading, topic, point in the lecture notes, etc. – you must explain your position explicitly using the course content to support your position. You must provide the sources you use for your responses, including the page numbers for the course texts. It is recommended that you participate at least once per topic to receive full marks for this course component (one posting does not equal one mark). Lastly, since active participation is most beneficial, the participation areas will close on Sundays at 11:59pm of the week after we cover a section in the course. The participation will help keep you on track with the readings and foster a sense of community. Although not for credit, you can also use the discussion area of OWL to ask questions about assignments, exams, etc. I urge you to ask any questions about course requirements, readings, lectures, etc. in the discussions area, instead of by email, as your questions may also be beneficial to your classmates as they may have the same questions or may find your questions useful for their own work. Please note that questions regarding your grades should not be posted on the discussion board– any questions regarding grades should be directed to me via email.

Vigorous academic debate is encouraged. However, students are reminded that in any classroom, courtesy and mutual respect are vital elements of a collegial atmosphere. Hateful remarks, unscholarly examples, or personal attacks are unacceptable and will not be tolerated.
