Course Description:
In modern Canadian society, most people believe that individuals shape their own destiny. And, to a certain extent that is true – we, as individuals, make decisions every day that shape the kind of life we lead. You made a decision about if you would attend university, how hard to work in your classes, where to live when attending school, and the type of summer job you want. But, of course, you do not get to make those decisions just as you choose. In this class, we will learn about how individual choices (sometimes called agency) are structured in society. We have the ability to make decisions, but our choices are often shaped by larger social forces.

C. Wright Mills tried to tackle these complicated issues with what he called the Sociological Imagination. Mills calls on us to try to see the connections between our individual lives and the larger society in which we live. He argues that we can only really understand our own lives and biographies if we understand the larger history of our society as a whole. Once we make these connections, we will be able to see the relationship between our own personal troubles, problems that we face as individuals, and larger public issues, social problems that arise in society. In this class, we will develop our sociological imaginations and focus on three core parts of sociology: social inequality, social institutions, and social change.

Learning objectives and outcomes: At the end of this course, the student will be able to

1. Use their sociological imagination and demonstrate an understanding of the relationship between individual experience and societal reality
2. Apply (extend) the theories and ideas discussed in class
3. Begin to develop the theoretical, methodological and cognitive skills to use sociology for social change
4. Communicate with clear critical reading, thinking and analytical skills.
Flipped Classroom:

Our classroom is ‘flipped’. What does that mean? It is expected that you will read and prepare for each lecture and tutorial before you arrive. We will review but not teach the readings, so if you have questions or information you are unsure of, you are more than welcome to find any of our teaching team to review information in office hours. We will spend our time together applying, analyzing and creating with the information covered in our assigned readings.

Required Text(s):

- Online articles and / or videos required for tutorial will be posted on OWL in the resources.

Tutorial: 30% of your mark will be determined in Tutorial …. Do NOT miss them!

You were assigned to a tutorial as part of the registration process. Participation in the tutorials is mandatory and crucial for academic success. There are no tutorials the first week of class; tutorials will begin the week of September 9th.

For tutorial you will be using the interactive online MINDTAP access to our text book as well as posted articles that will be found in OWL: Resources. You will be asked to read or watch videos in advance, have questions read and complete the occasional assignment either before or after tutorial. This will be explained in lecture and in tutorial for further understanding.
Tutorial attendance is a required component of this course.

If a student is absent from more than four tutorials across the entire course, they may be barred from taking the final examination and will fail the course.

| Tutorial Engagement (attendance, participation, preparation and professionalism) | 10 |

Throughout the course, a series of ‘working sessions' will be included in tutorial as part of our engagement with the material. You will be asked to sign up with a group of up to 5 people. You are encouraged to work with the same group throughout the term. This will help you develop a relationship and understanding of each other’s skills.

The goal of these assignments is to introduce sociology students to the process of reading sociological research and conducting sociological research. Students will spend time making connections between theory and practical application of sociological knowledge.

TO BE SUCCESSFUL: You want to encourage yourself and others to move outside the comfort zone and really analyze why society is the way that it is and for what purpose. You will be given time in tutorial to work on this research so please ensure that you are present. A detailed outline will be provided on OWL.

You will be given some time in tutorial to work on this research so please ensure that you are present.

Midterm and Final Examinations (35% * 2): All examinations will be multiple choice questions. A breakdown and tutorial reviews will be provided before each exam. These exams are not cumulative, but you are expected to retain and be able to apply theory and bring major concepts throughout the course.
REMEMBER:  All written submissions (both formal and informal) are marked based on level of critical analysis, succinct arguments and overall organization of your thoughts. While grammar is not specifically marked, it will influence the delivery of your argument, so careful editing is expected. The course material is a foundation and a motivator for critical reflection on deviance. I expect that you will move beyond the course material, expanding and offering new ways of thinking about deviance or new issues that relate to our course.

Professionalism in the Classroom:
You expect me, your professor, to be professional. You expect that I will be there, be prepared and be ready to expand on the material and that I will communicate and get work back to you in a timely manner, with constructive feedback. If for some reason I am unable to do so, you would expect that I have a valid reason and that I let you know as soon as possible, with a plan on how the work will be completed.

As your instructor, I expect the same from you. I expect that you will be in class. You will be ready to engage and connect with your classmates. You will plan for the due dates and schedule trips and other personal business around our assignments and exams.

In any 'job', you are expected to be there, act professional, be respectful, to go 'beyond' to contribute to your team. Post-secondary education is one part of your professional career, so I encourage you to treat it as such.

Lecture and Tutorial attendance is a required component of this course.

If a student is absent from more than four tutorials across the entire course or are not in attendance for at least 70% of our lectures, they can be barred from taking the final examination and may fail the course.

Lectures are a required component for this course, and attendance will be taken periodically. No explicit credit is attached to your lecture attendance; however, I can assure you that your success in this course depends greatly on your attendance in class.

In OUR class, engagement is all-encompassing. It means being there, it means speaking up when you have something to contribute, it means working in groups / partners when asked and it means contributing online. You want to constantly challenge yourself and others to think about the material and the world around us.

If you are actively engaged and in touch with your instructor, your grades will improve, your experience in the class will be positive and the classroom will be much more interesting!
I embrace technology in our classroom. However, I also expect students will use it responsibly. If I find students abusing this trust, you will be warned once and then asked to leave the classroom. I fully understand the lure of social media, but please take the two hours we are together to focus with me. I will give you a break each class, use that time to check in. If you read this section on professionalism in the classroom, please send me a picture of a symbol that represents you through messenger on OWL and I will give you a bonus mark on your midterm 😊

Academic Policies:

Policies for Assignment Deadlines:
Students must submit all work on time. For this class it is required that you are in tutorial to do the group assignments. It is not possible to miss tutorial and still complete the group assignments because they are both based on presentations. If for some reason this presentation is missed, students are required to go through the process they would for missing an exam or test (see below).

A Note on Plagiarism:
Students must write their assignments in their own words. Whenever students take an idea from another author, they must acknowledge their debt both by using quotation marks where appropriate and by proper referencing such as footnotes or citations. Plagiarism is a major scholastic offence (the Scholastic Offence Policy can be viewed in the Western Academic Calendar).

Plagiarism Checking:
All required papers may be subject to submission for textual similarity review to the commercial plagiarism detection software under license to the University for detection of plagiarism. All papers submitted for such checking will be included as source documents in the reference database for the purpose of detecting plagiarism of papers subsequently submitted to the system. Use of the service is subject to the licensing agreement, currently between The University of Western Ontario and Turnitin.com

Policies on Examinations

No technology is permitted when writing examinations for this class unless it is part of approved student accommodations.

Computer-marked multiple-choice tests and/or exams may be subject to submission for similarity review by software that will check for unusual coincidences in answer patterns that may indicate cheating.
Policy on Laptops and other Electronics/Phones in Class:
Laptops are permitted in class but if it is observed that students are on social networking sites such as Facebook or Twitter, they will be told to close the lid and they will not be permitted to use it for the remainder of the class. Be sure that all cell phones are turned off at the beginning of class. Recording of lectures or tutorials without the explicit consent of the Professor or TA is ground for academic discipline.
